The Founders' Cemetery at Cambridge, Ohio, is the oldest cemetery in Guernsey County and contains the remains of the early settlers of the region, as well as of many who lived there for only a few years. Still, there is very little written about it and practically no published work of its history.

This publication is more than just a listing of the families who are buried there, it also contains many stories and relationships of those early settlers. It is largely material taken from the private notes of Mrs. Robert M. Conner, a professional genealogist and an historian of Guernsey County, Ohio, until she moved to Arizona in 1973.

Newspaper articles, personal letters, and individual recollections were used in making these original notations. The information is too important to be lost forever and may be of immense value to someone searching this area for that long-lost bit of family history.

Concerning the listing of known burials, many of the markers, from which this information was taken in the late 1950s and early 1960s, have further deteriorated in the intervening thirty-some years.

The Cemetery, known as Founders' Cemetery, was platted in 1806 by Zaccheus A. Beatty and Joseph Gomber, when they laid out the town of Cambridge, Ohio. As the settlement grew, additional land was acquired in 1833 and again in 1858. This last parcel was called the South Cemetery but was later renamed the Old City Cemetery.

The Founders' Cemetery and the South or Old City Cemetery, while not being contiguous, served the community for over 100 years.

We have attempted to have a high degree of accuracy in this work, but cannot guarantee that errors have not been made, either in reading the original source material or in the printing thereof.

This book is published in memory of the members of our families who are buried there. Namely the Walters, McMahons, and Grummunds.

Beginning in the row on the east side of the walk, at the south side of Founders' Cemetery,

The first marked grave is a stone to Willie Suitt, son of Z. C. and Mary Suitt.

Next are stones to Joanna and Mary G. Wilson, daughters of Otho and Catherine Burt Wilson. Otho Wilson was a son of Joshua Wilson, an early settler of the County and one of the first land surveyors. Catherine Wilson was a daughter of Lieut. David Burt. Her first husband was Richard Beymer, father of H. B. Beymer; her second husband, Otho Wilson was the father of C. B. Wilson. These two sons later were Real Estate agents in Cambridge, Ohio. Near this square is a memorial flag stake, perhaps intended for the grave of Lieut. David Burt, of the War of 1812. In this plot, in other years, was a grave marked to Cyrus B. Burt. From the appearance of the ground, we think that the remains of the Burt family have been removed from the cemetery.

The next is a stone to Israel Sarchet, son of David and Mary Ann Sarchet.

Next to them, are the Bell family. Their plot was curbed with stone and, in the center, was a monument erected by Walter A. Bell to the memory of his loved ones - Nancy Bell, mother; Margaret, Emma, May, and Samuel, sisters and brother.

Samuel Bell was a rising young lawyer of Cambridge, and died in 1851. He married Sarah Turner, sister of Elza Turner, Esq. She is buried in this square.

On the east side of the monument is the name of Rev. Walter A. Bell, of the Pittsburg Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He died in 1859. He was a brilliant minister.

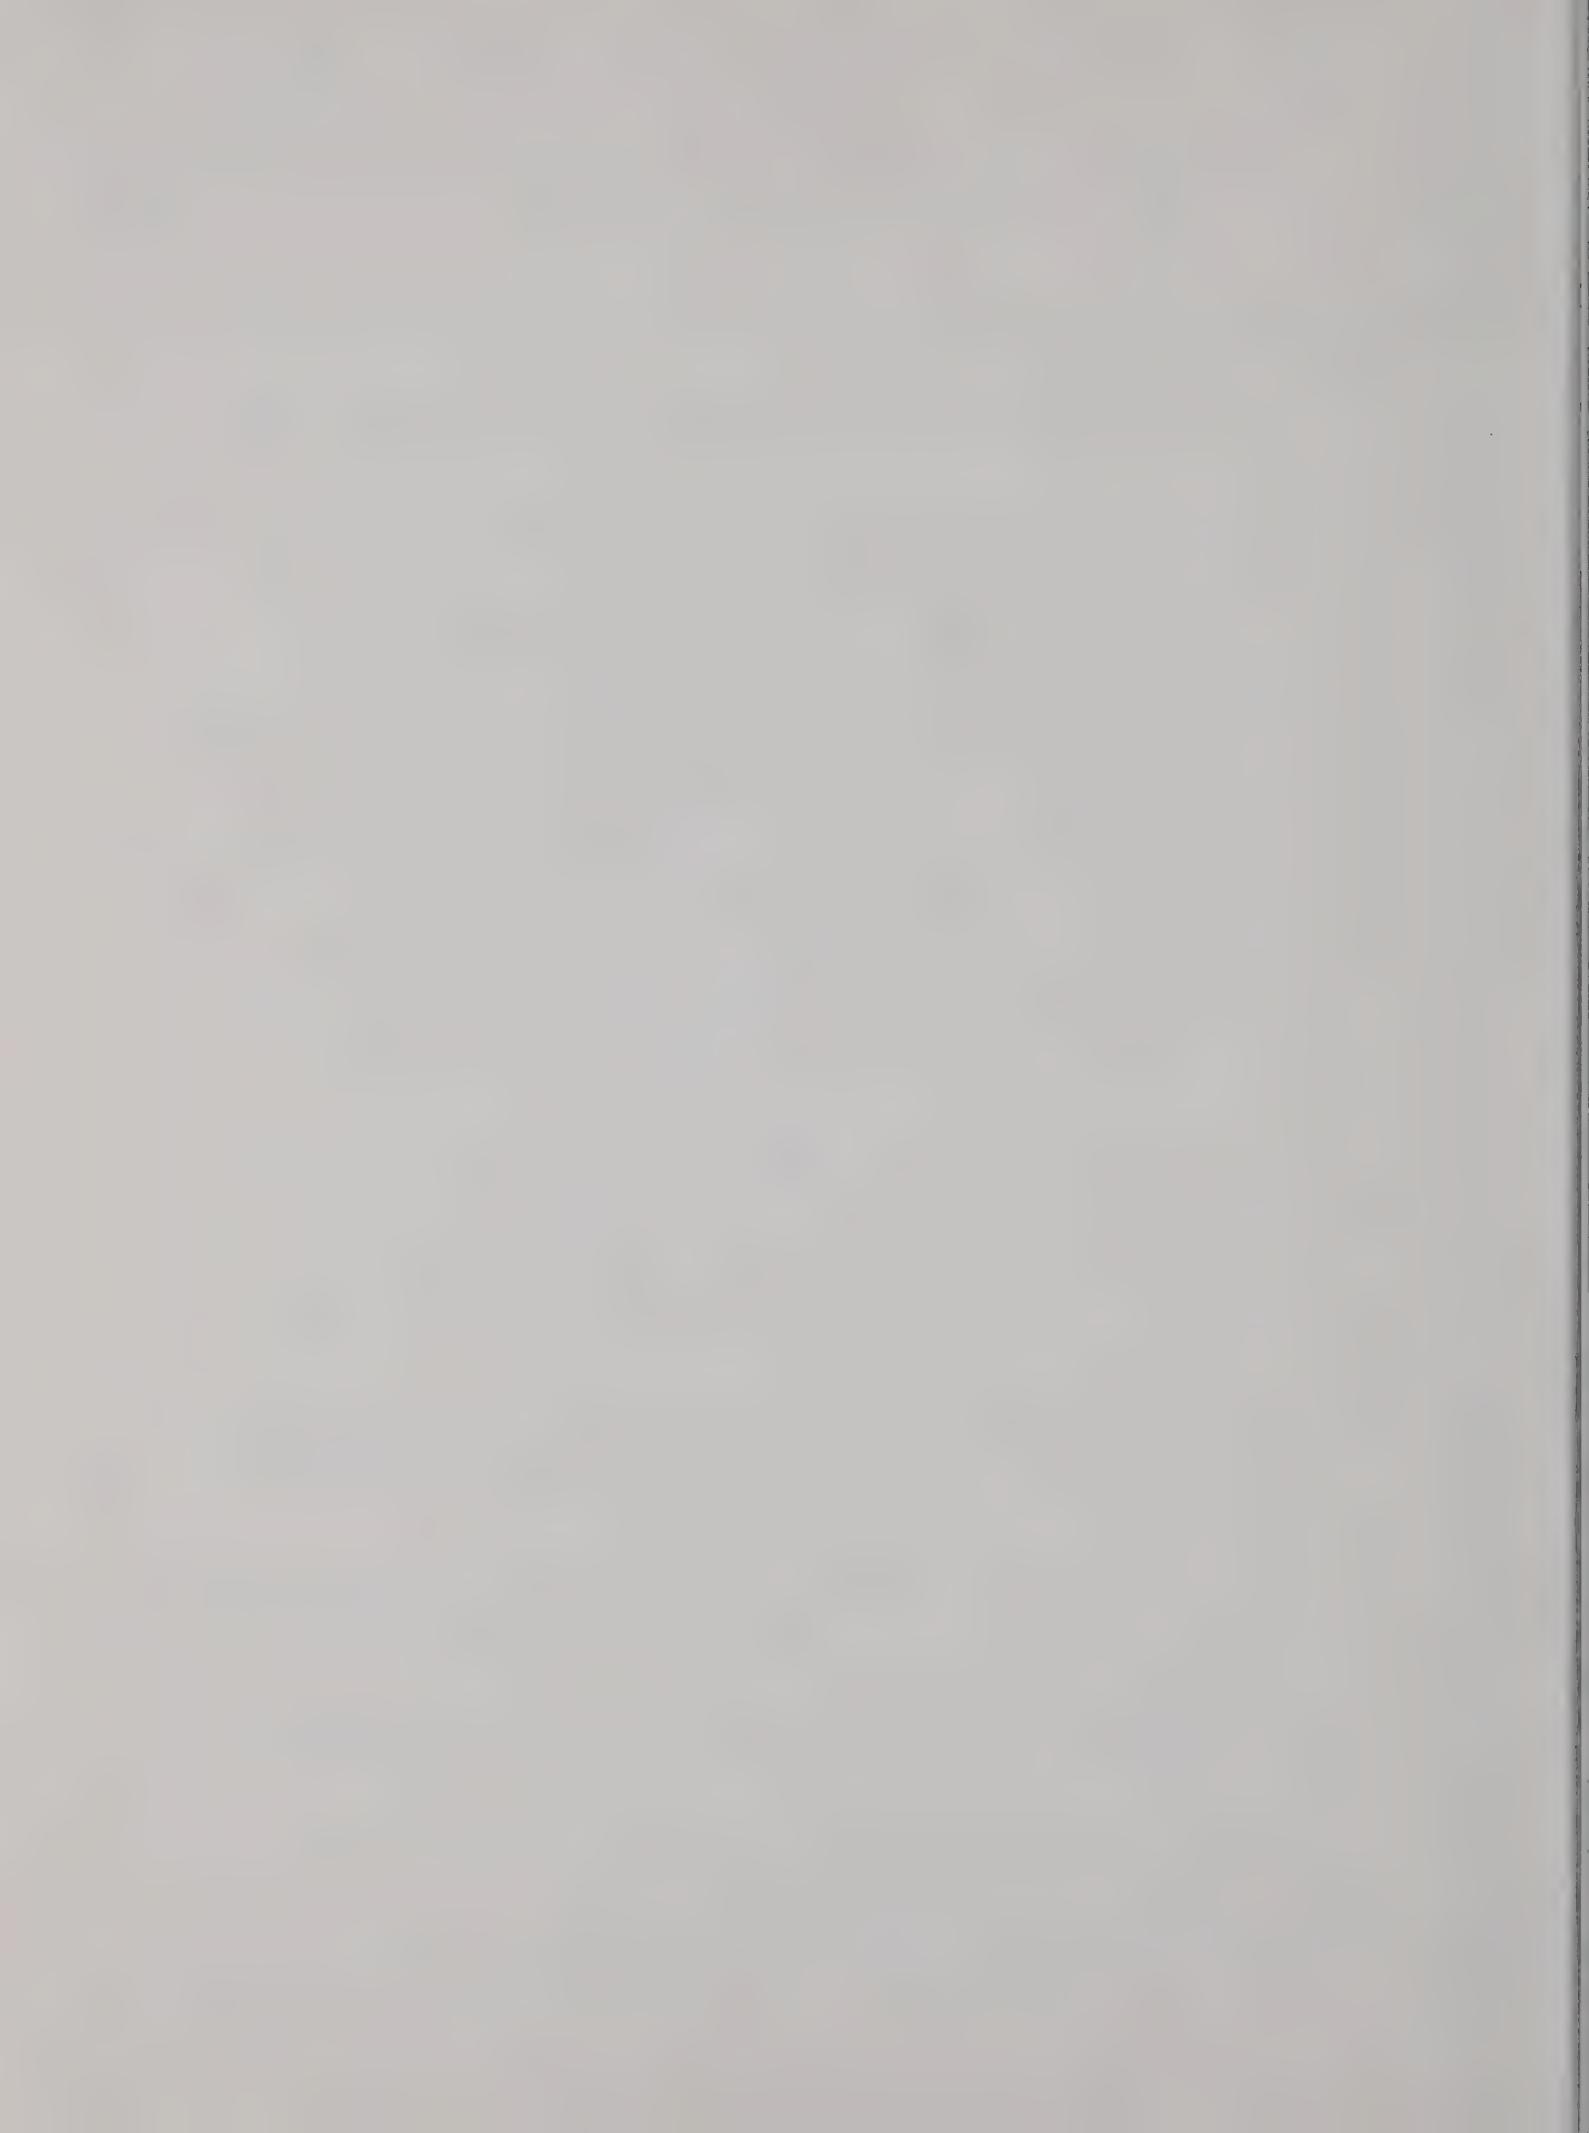

Cassius H. Hunter was married to the only child of Samuel and Sarah Turner Bell.

In the next lot is the Turner family.

John A. Turner, son of Elza and Susanna Turner.

William H. Turner, son of James and C. H. Turner.

A memorial flag mark the grave of James Turner Esq., of the War of 1812.

Next is a slab to the memory of Matilda Davis, wife of Samuel Davis.

In another plot of this cemetery are the Oldham pioneers.

Mary Ann, wife of S. M. Oldham and some of their children rest here.

She was the mother of Isaac A. Oldham, of Cambridge.

Next to them is Rachel Nelson, daughter of Isaac and Sarah Oldham and William, son of John Marling and Rachel, daughter of John Marling.

Capt. John Marling was an early settler northeast of Cambridge and the grandfather of the Marlins of Guernsey County.

The next two sections are occupied by the Greens and the Moores.

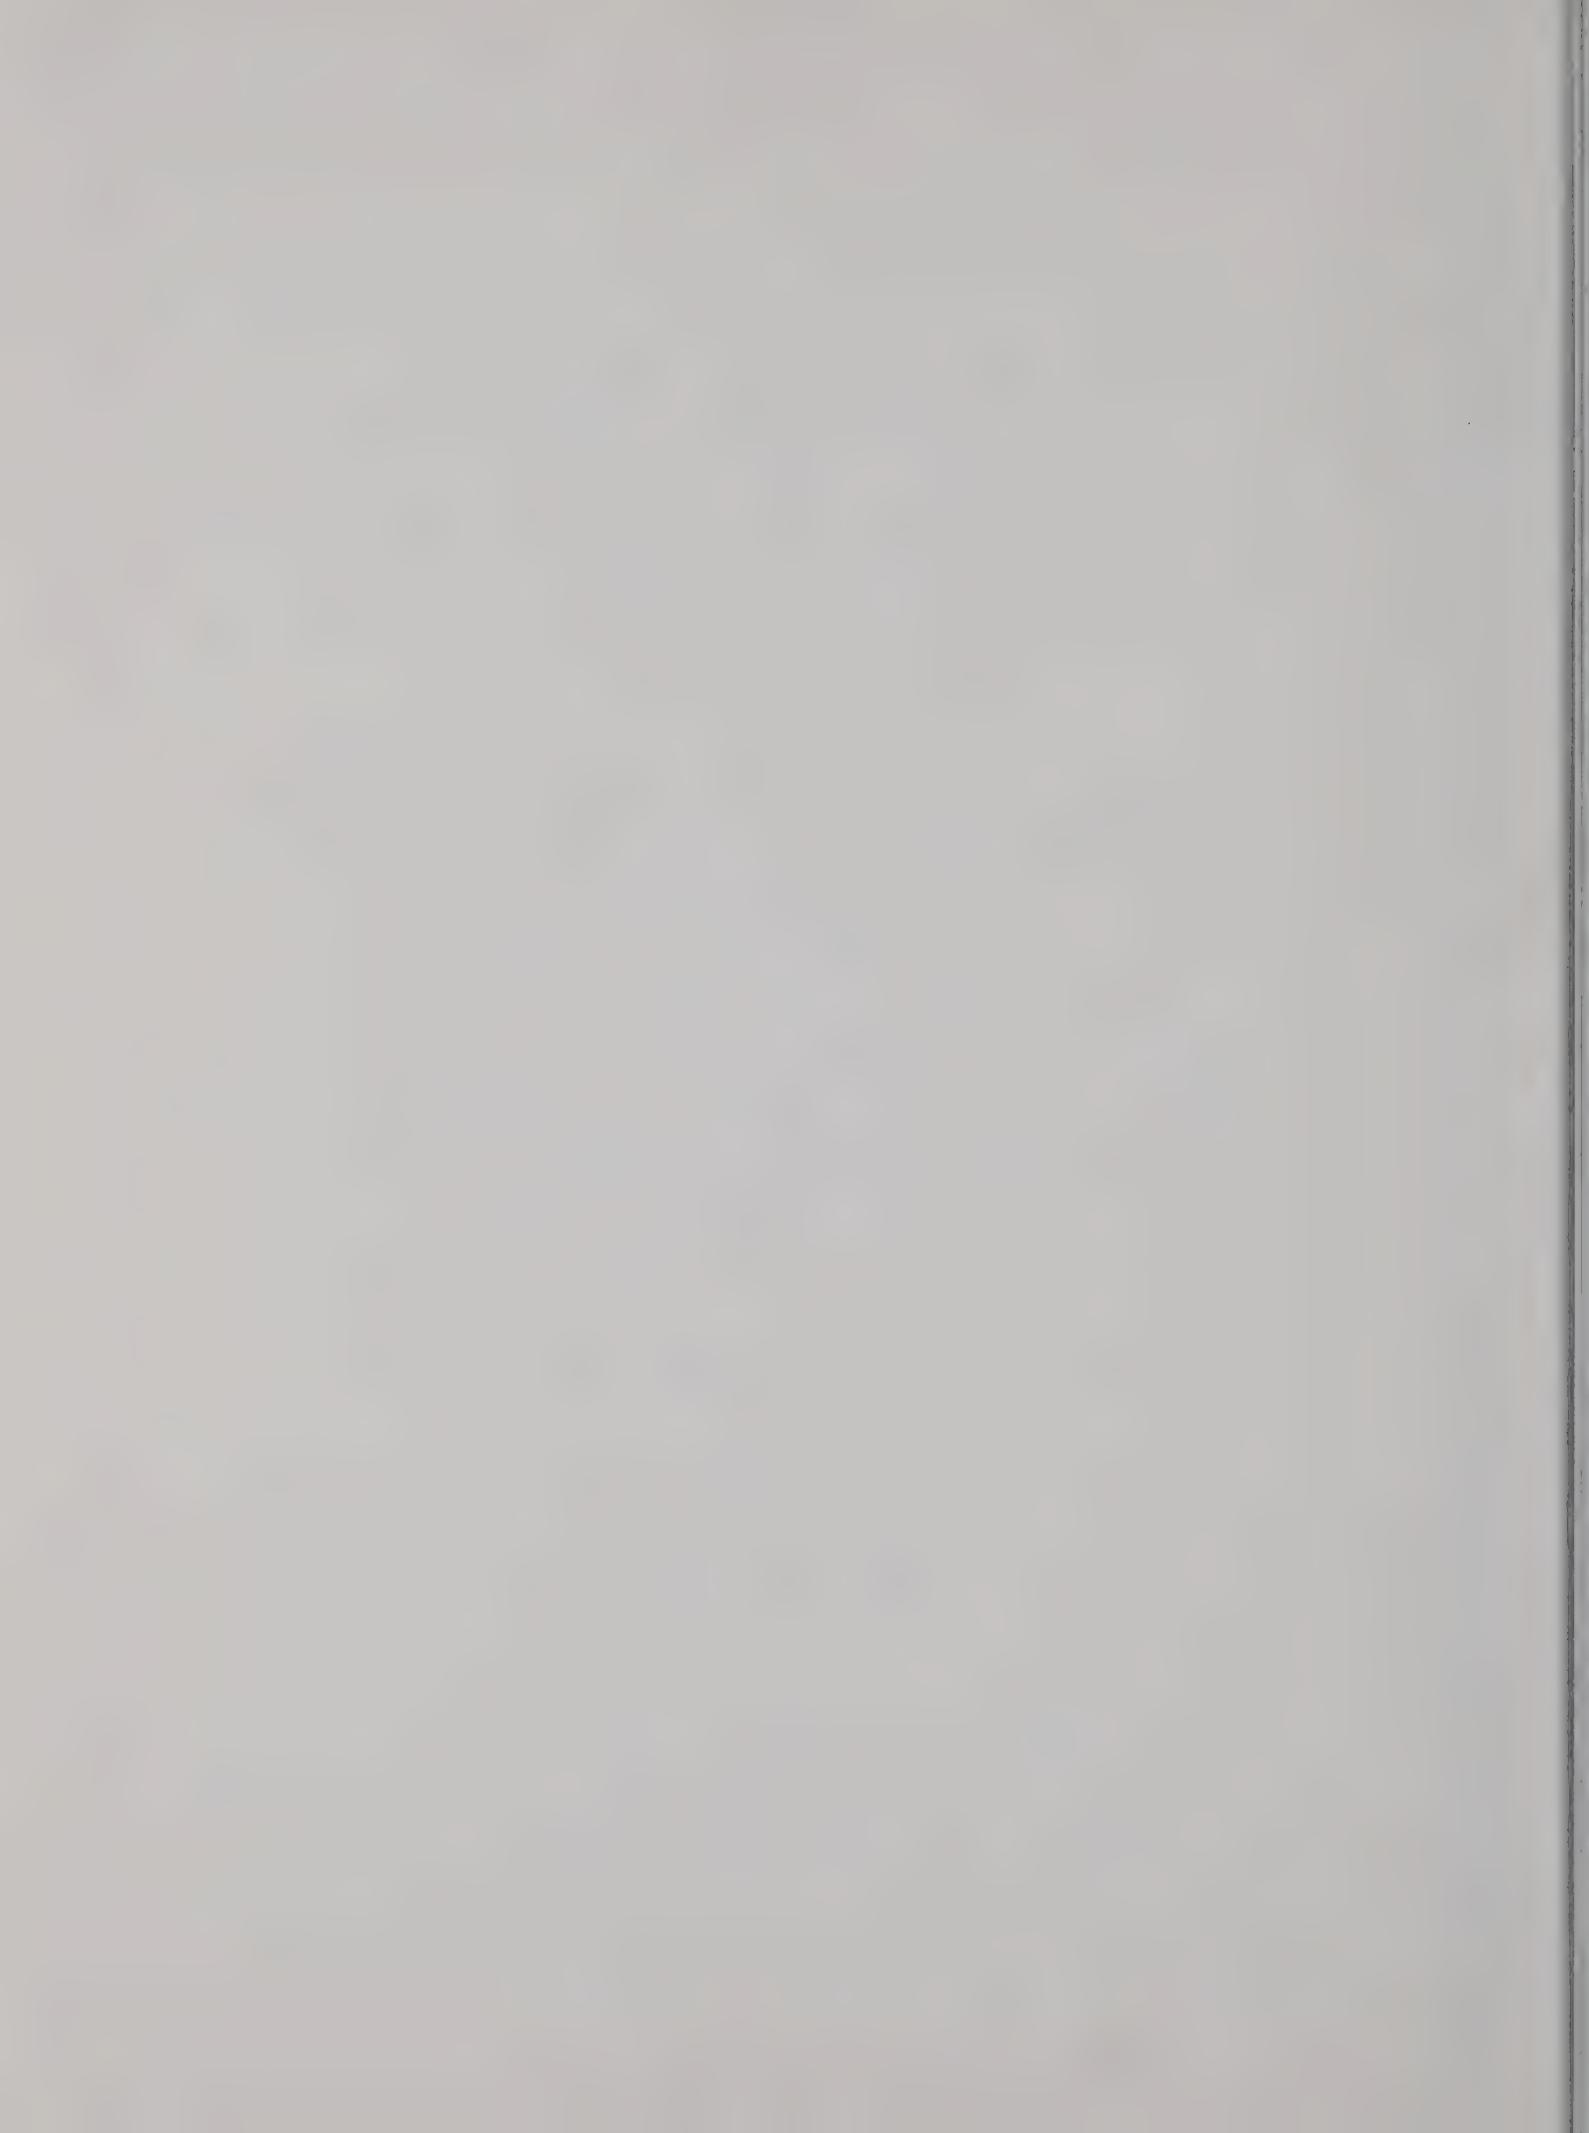

First, is a monument to Dr. Milton Green and stones to Lewis Austin and Clarence Grummon Green. These are the children by his second marriage, his wife being Emma Grummon, daughter of Ichabod Grummon Esq.

Ichabod Grummon was a son of Isaac Grummon and Gemima Price Grummon.

They came to Guernsey County in 1806. Their son Isaac, who married Sarah McMahon, served as an Ohio Representative from Guernsey County in 1819. Ichabod and Isaac were landowners in Westland Township and owned the Grummon Tavern which was used as an underground Railroad Station during the Civil War. Hannah, a daughter of Isaac and Gemima Grummon, married John Huffman Walters, the son of John H. Walters and Catherine Huffman. John H. Walters, who died in 1829, served in the American Revolution. The name Grummon is frequently spelled Grummond.

There is a stone to Susan Moore, daughter of Gen. Robert E. Moore, wife of Dr. Milton Green, and by her side are stones to Susan and Cassius Allen Green, children of Milton and Susan Green. Susan Moore Green was the mother of Mrs. Kate McMahon, of Cambridge, and of Robert Green on California.

There is a stone to Catherine Gomber, wife of Gen. Robert B. Moore, and one to Thomas S. Moore, son of Robert B. and Catherine G. Moore. Here are the mother and two children, Susan and Thomas S., of a large family, historically connected with Cambridge and Guernsey County in the beginning as proprietor of the town and as early officials of the County. Gen. Robert B. Moore and others deceased of this family are buried in California.

The next square is given to Allen W. Beatty Esq. and Arbella Noble, his wife. These are also historic names. Here, side by side, lie the Gombers and the Beattys who were the bearers of people looking into the future for its greatness.

The last in this row, is a plot to the Thomas family. The grandfather and grandmother of J. Sterling and Mary Thomas, of Cambridge. This lot is enclosed with an iron fence and flowers bloom in the spring. Richard Thomas was an early merchant of Cambridge. Lam Thomas was a prominent Whig and an editor of the Guernsey Times in 1840. His wife was Catherine Gomber Metcalf. They both died in Philadelphia.

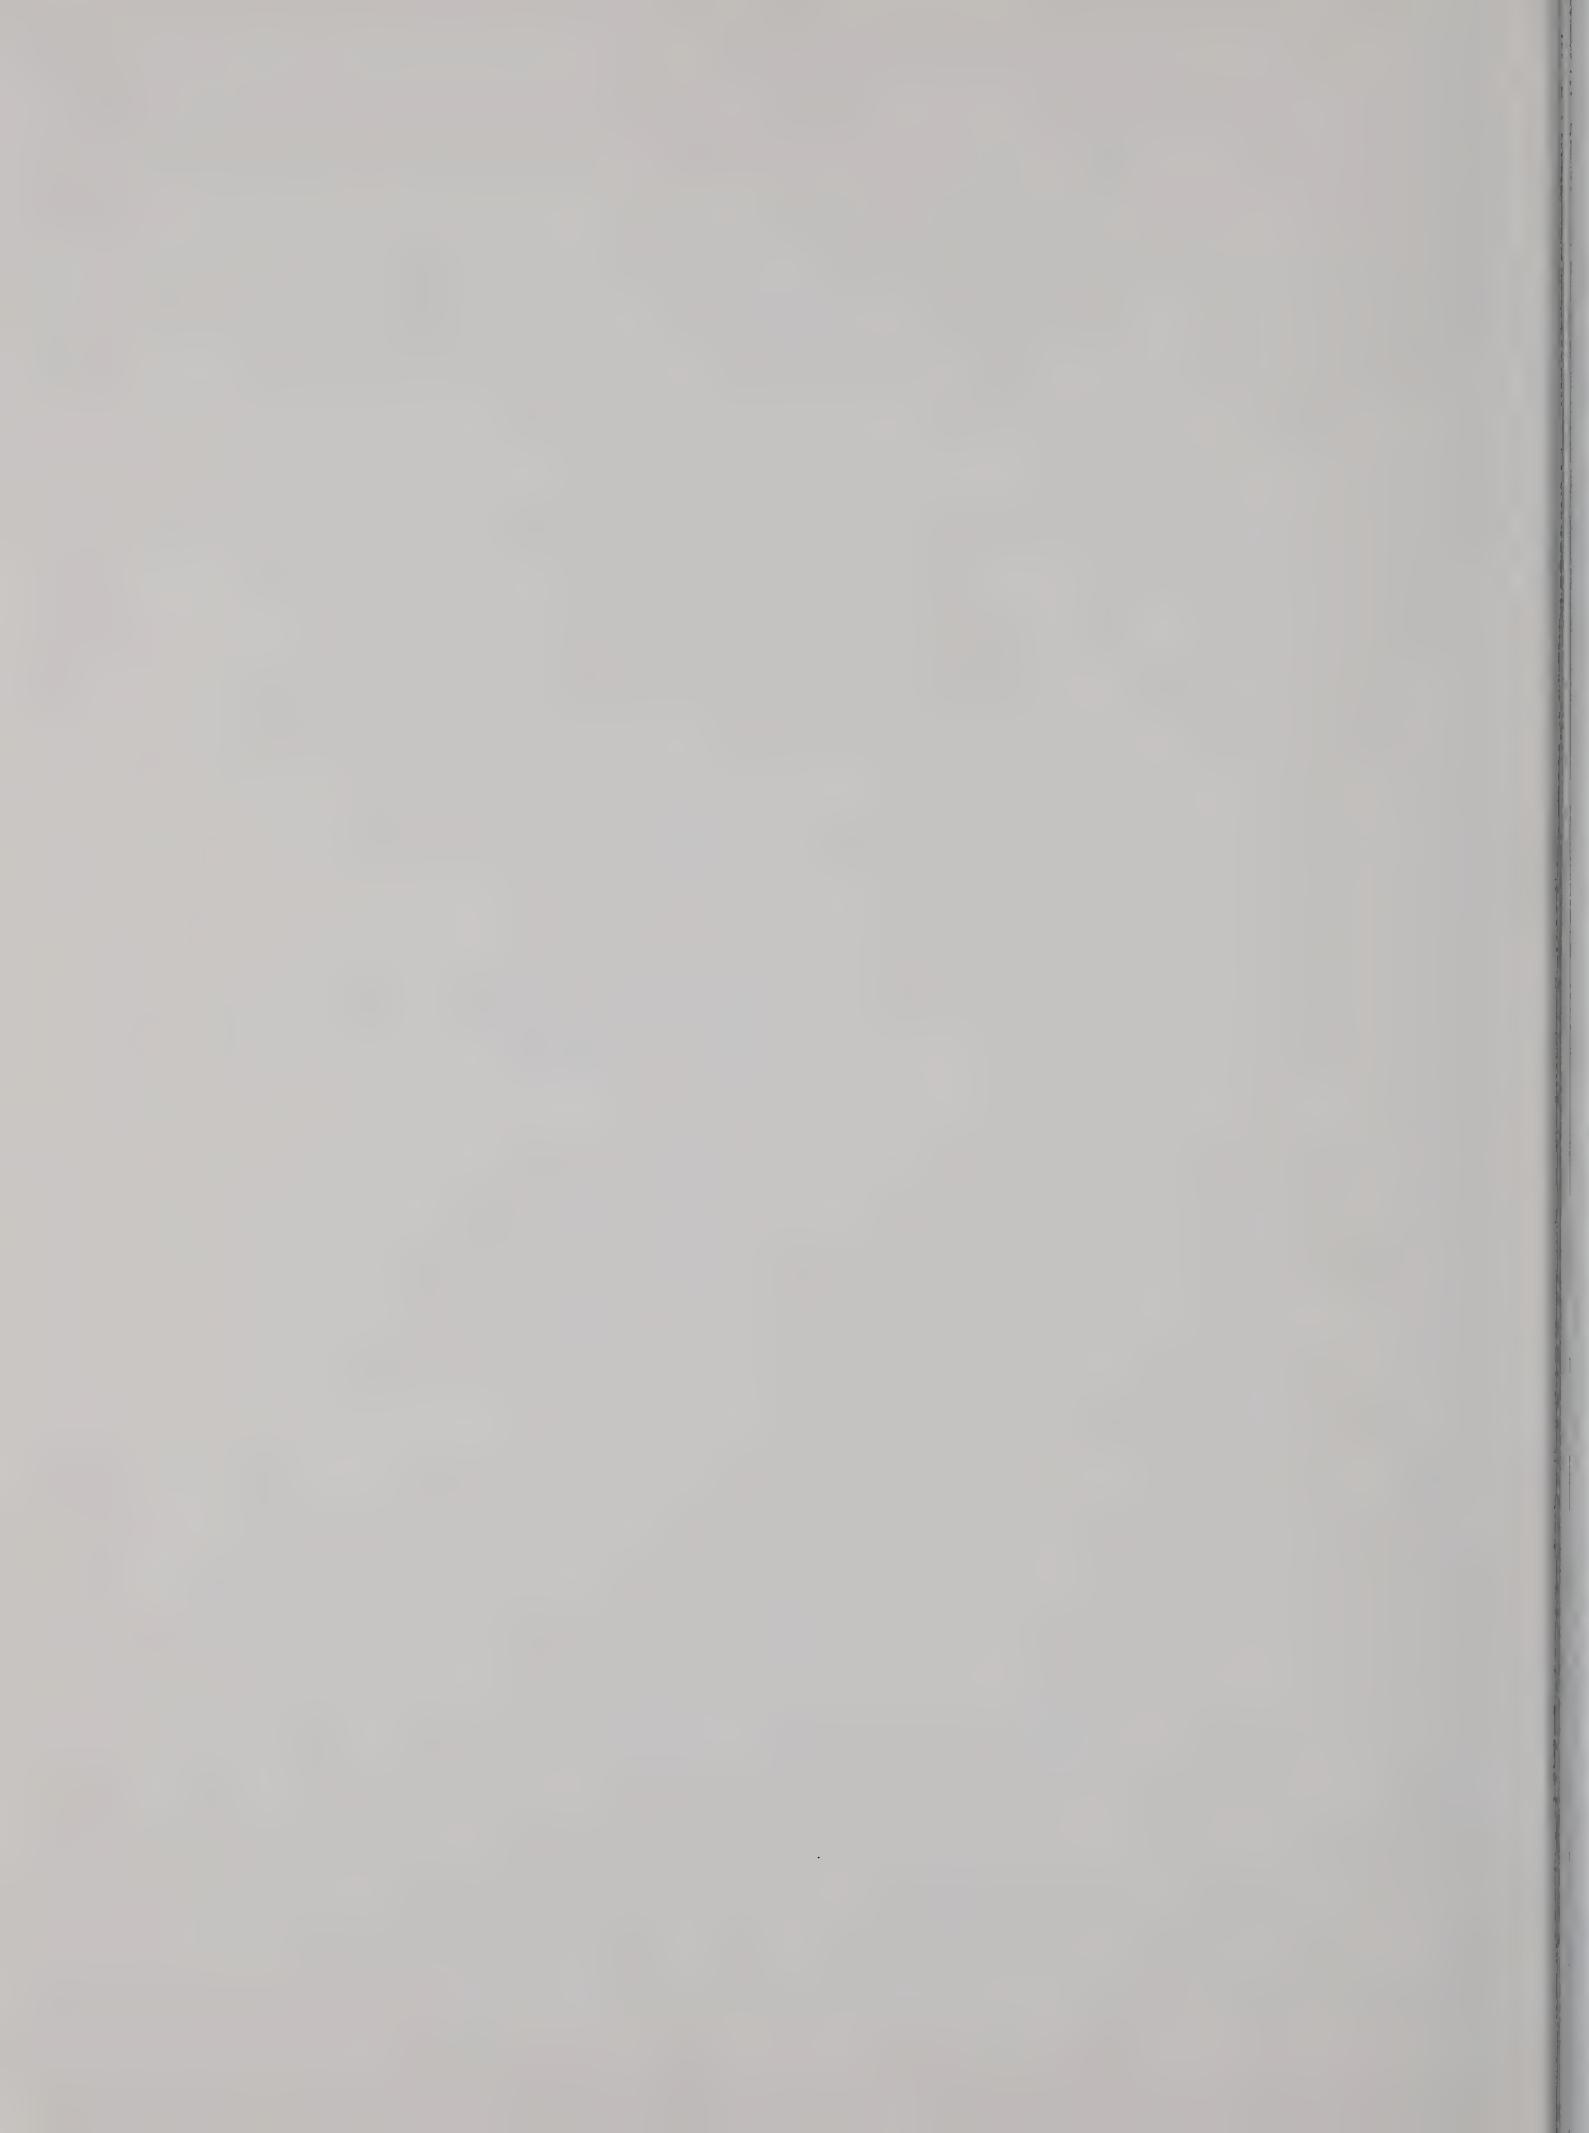

On the brow of the hill is a stone marking the resting place of Amanda, daughter of John McCarrell.

Coming north, a stone was erected for Cassandra Rogers, daughter of Michael Rogers. Michael was a merchant in Cambridge and later moved to Newcomerstown where he engaged in canal boating.

Two squares are taken by Dr. John P. Tingle and Joseph D. Tingle. The deceased are children of John P. and Amanda Clark Tingle and all of the deceased are of the Joseph D. Tingle family. He was laid by the side of his wife, Catherine Thomas Tingle, at his request, and was, in his lifetime, much opposed to destroying or disturbing this old resting place of his ancestors and family.

A stone marks the resting place of David G. and Mary Owens. David O. Owens was a relative of the Gombers, Beattys, and the Metcalfs. Mary Davis Owens was a daughter of Quaker John Davis who was connected with the old court house. The Hamme family are children of David G. Owens.

A stone marks the grave of William Patterson, and another the graves of John and Julia Ann Cook and several children of this family. This John Cook was a son of Capt. Thomas Cook and the father of John B. Cook, who was shot by Oliver and Hartup. They were tried and convicted by a military commission, of which Gen. A. J. Warner was the president and Col. J. D. Taylor, the judge advocate.

Near the old fence, on the north side, are slabs with the names of Harriet McStanley and some children of Alexander and Margaret McStanley. They later left off the "Mc." Harriet was a daughter of Basil Williamson.

In passing by a dismantled stone that we had earlier noted as illegible, the sun's rays, striking the stone from the west, gave us the outlines of Catherine, consort of Andrew McConehay. Andrew was the first to begin the coal trade in Cambridge, hauling it from what was then known as the McCurry bank. It was in the same hill and north of the present Millner bank from which so much coal has been mined.

In the same row was a marker for Ann Jamison, wife of John Rogers, age 70.

A very neat stone marked the grave of May Ann Entz, wife of John Entz. She was a daughter of Thomas Sarchet Jr. We presume that this stone was placed there by her son, Elias Entz, who recently visited friends in Cambridge. Preparations had begun for a marker of the grandmother and grandfather Elias Entz and wife Hannah.

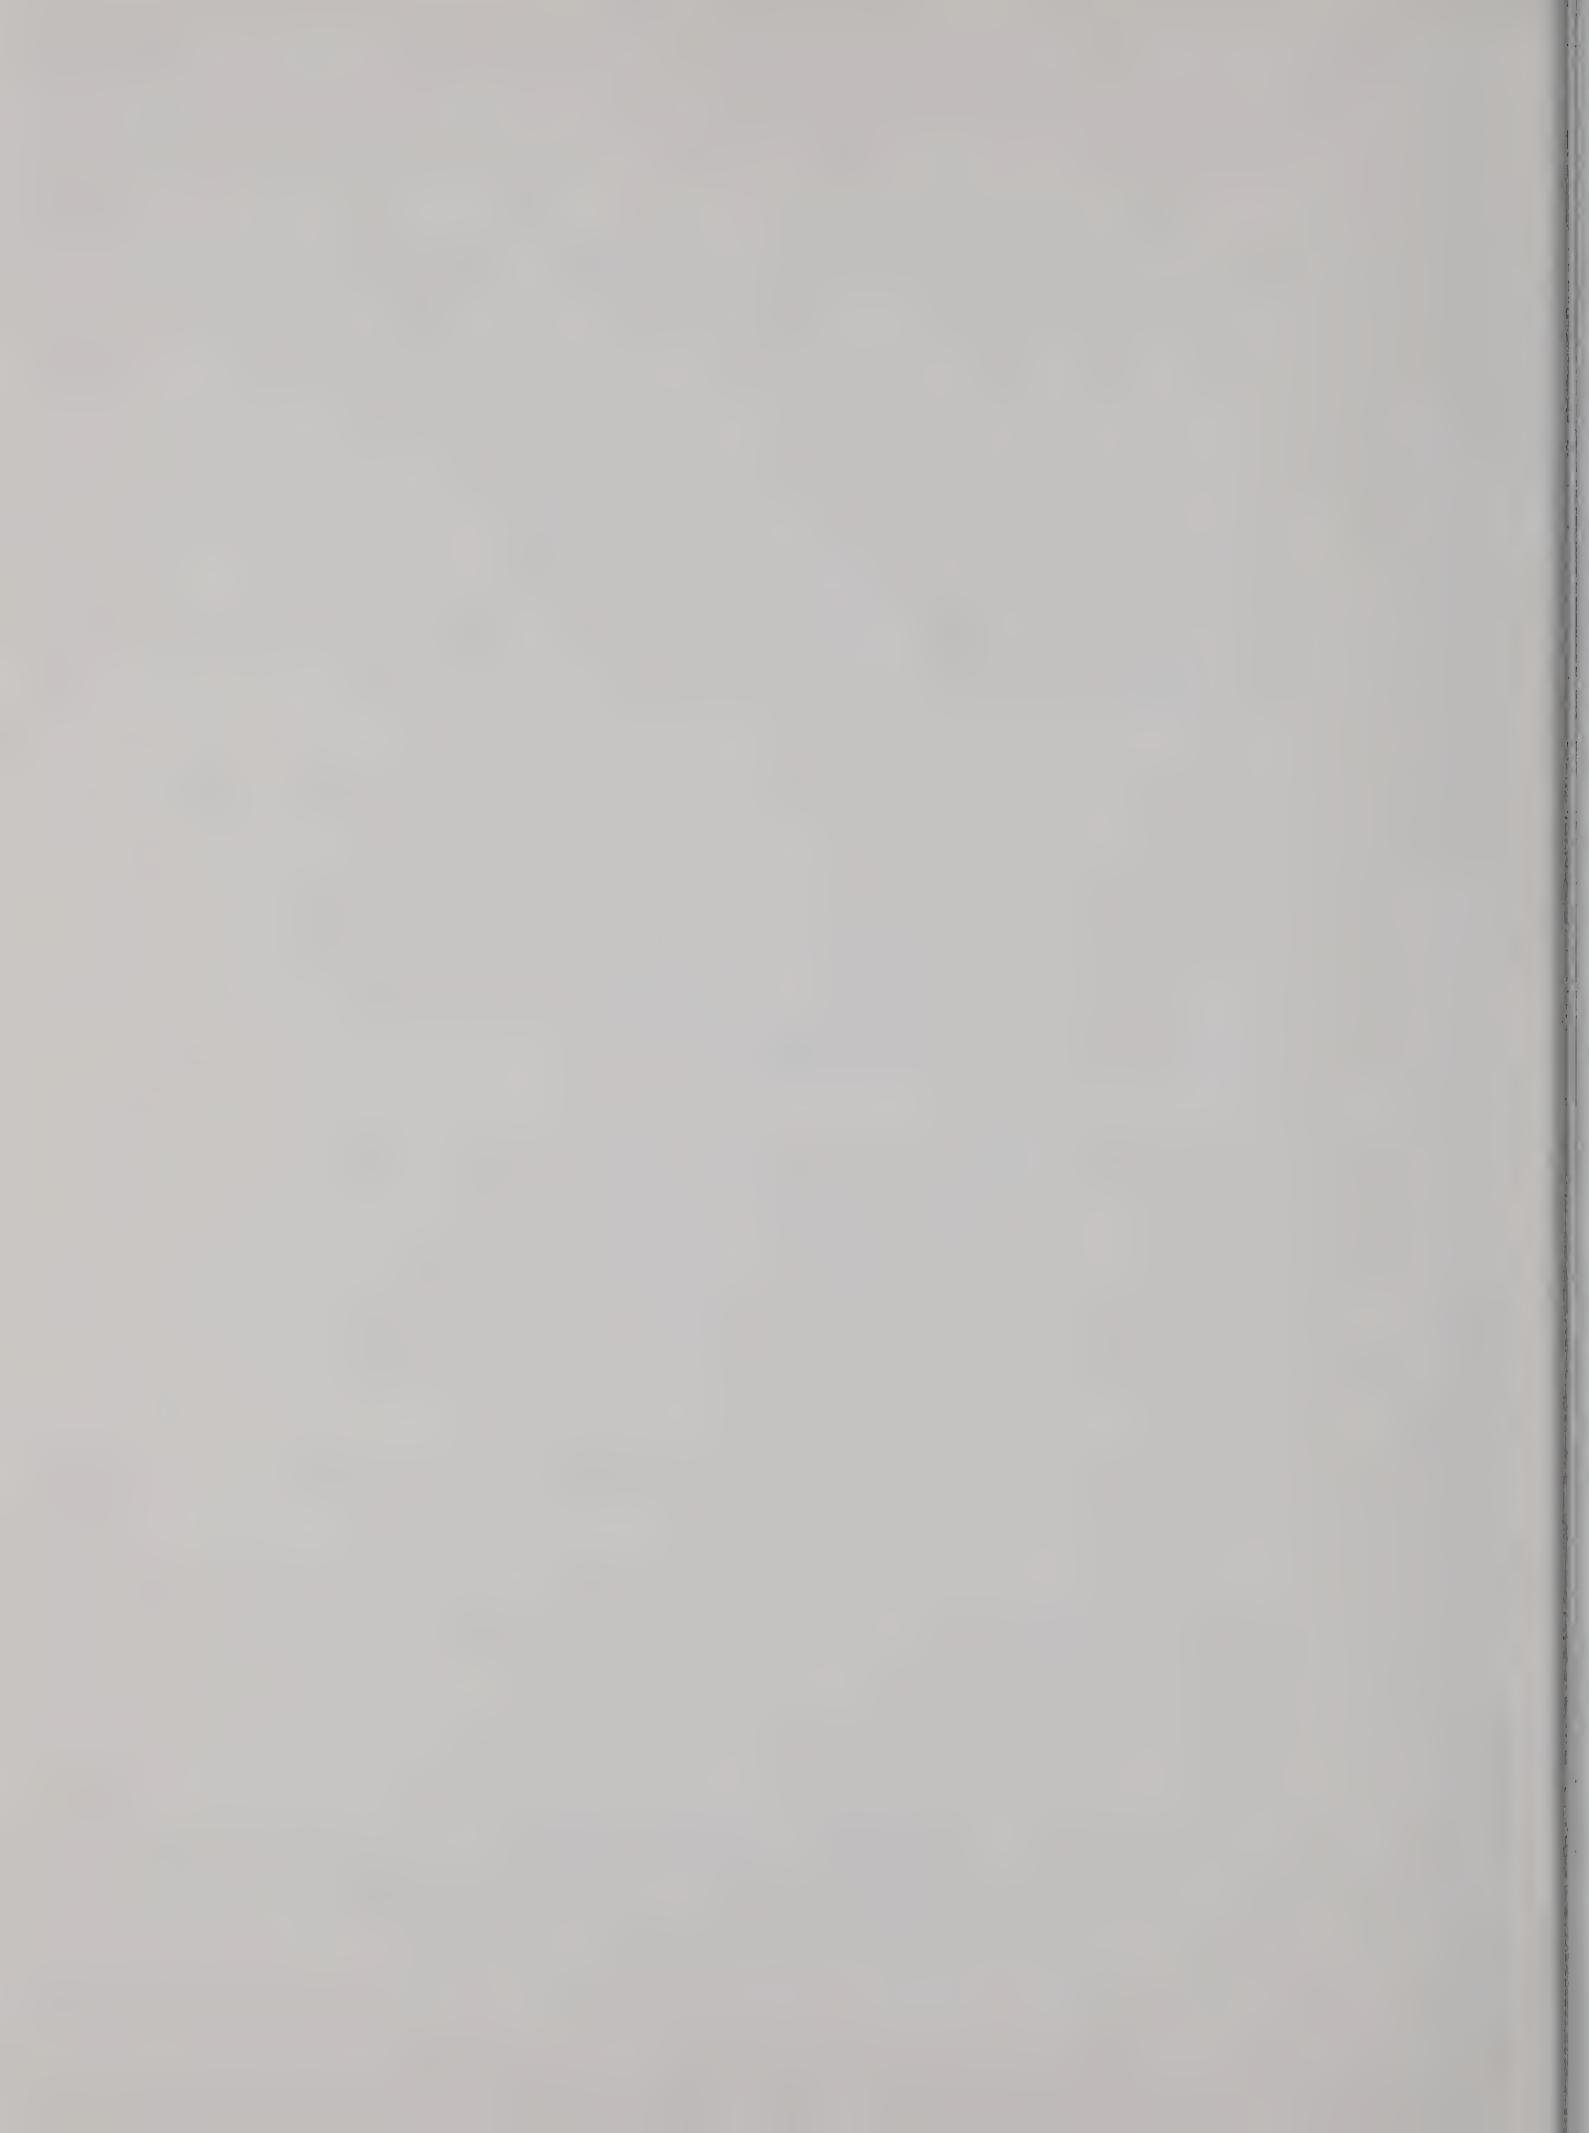

There is a square given to the Lofland family: Joseph Lofland and Elizabeth, his wife; Boreman Lofland and Mary H., his wife; Rebecca, sister of Joseph and Gordon Lofland; and some dismantled stones, erected to the children of Boze and Susan Lofland. Boze Lofland was a brother. Boreman and Mary H. Lofland were the grandparents of those who erected the stones.

The last one in the row is that of John M. Danhifer and Maria J., daughter of John M. and Mary Danhifer.

In the next row, beginning on the north side, is Maria S., wife of James Motee, and some children.

Next is Sarah, wife of John Huston.

The next is of Jane S., daughter of William McGill of Pittsburg, Pa. She was a sister of Rev. James McGill, pastor of the United Presbyterian Church.

The next is a stone to Alcinda, daughter of Richard and Sarah Hatton, who died in 1847. Richard Hatton was, at that time, editor of the Guernsey Times. He was the father of Hon. Frank Hatton. Sarah Hatton was the daughter of Rev. Allen Green, pastor of the Methodist Church.

First in the next row is the grave of Augustus Burt, son of Col. David Burt. He was educated in the ministry of the Presbyterian Church but died young.

The next is a marker to Caroline Tolbert, wife of Nathaniel Tolbert. She was of the Bichard family of Cambridge.

The next stone was blown over and was to Margaret Anne Bonnell, wife of William Bonnell Esq. She was the daughter of Col. Zaccheus A. Beatty and her first husband was Theodore Ross. He came from Zanesville and was the son of George Ross. His brother, A. C. Ross, distinguished himself by singing the song, "T'is the ball that's rolling along", at a great Whig mass meeting in New York City in 1840. Theodore Ross was a gunsmith in Cambridge for 50 years.

Margaret Ann Beatty Bonnell inherited, from her father, the tavern "Bridge House" that stood on the now Central Railroad grounds, on Wheeling Ave., at the old toll bridge. She died in this old house as did her first husband. She was the second wife of William Bonnell Esq. who died in 1855, and was the last to occupy the house.

The next stone was erected by Daniel Eberle in memory of Elizabeth Eberle, his daughter. He had a brewery, which was located on the now W. D. Turnbaugh farm.

The next is a stone to Elizabeth Cook, relict of Capt. Thomas Cook, aged 91 years. Dr. Lyle, a son-in-law, lies in the same row.

The next is Rhoda Wilson, aged 17 years, daughter of High and Mary Wilson. Before moving west, he lived on the Joseph Brown farm, west of Cambridge. He was a prominent Presbyterian and one of the foremost farmers and wool growers of the county. He later moved to Mexico, Mo.

The next square is devoted to the John Dixon family; Eliza Dixon, wife of Cyrus Cook; Cynthia Dixon; and some children of Cyrus and Eliza Cook.

Another is a stone to Mary S., daughter of John and Eliza Ferguson.

The next has no marker, but the next one is that of Bertha Bute, wife of Noah Hyatt, and Mary Jane, daughter of Noah and Bertha Hyatt. Major Joseph Bute is also buried here.

There is a marker for Daniel Motte, who was an early settler of Cambridge. Mrs. George Gallup and Mrs. Maria Bonnell are grandchildren of this family.

Near them lies Basil Williamson, also an early settler, and Rachel Carlo, wife of John Carlo, of Zanesville, is nearby. She was a Lenfesty. There is a stone to Harriet Carlo, daughter of John and Rachel Carlo. The Lenfesty family were early settlers. Thomas M. and W. H. F. Lenfesty, of Winterset, are grandchildren of this family.

Elisha Blanpied was a young man of early Guernsey emigrant and was a tailor by trade, with a store in the J. O. McIllyar block for 50 years.

Two stones mark the graves of children of Selden and Margaret King. A long grave is marked "W. W." nothing else is legible. This, we think, marks the grave of the Wines family, early pioneers, who lived one mile east of Cambridge on the old Wheeling road, now the Ferguson farm.

A stone, under a tree, marks the grave of Catherine Tracy, daughter of W. W. Tracy Esq., who was a prominent attorney and whose name is perpetuated in Cambridge by the Tracy Addition.

There is a broken shaft to the family of Ebenezer Smith, Sr., who settled first at Washington and later at Cambridge. He was the County Sheriff and Treasurer, and, for a long time, Justice of the Peace of Cambridge Township. William Smith, his son, was Recorder of the County and Postmaster of Cambridge, under the Taylor administration. James M. Smith, a son, was a photographer and portrait painter. Frank Smith is a grandson.

There are stones to Christopher Danhaser (?) and Margaret Motte, his wife and a stone to Daniel, their son.

A monument was built for John Mehaffey, father of J. P. Mehaffey of the Cambridge Herald and some of his children.

Here are stones to Charles Scott Sr. and wife. They were the parents of the late Ross Scott and Mrs. George Brown of Senecaville, Ohio. They were early settlers of Knox Township, later moving to Cambridge Township, three miles east of the city.

Miss Briggs was the wife of Thomas Chapman and a sister of Hon. Ansel Briggs, the first Governor of the State of Iowa. The father and mother and other members of this family rest in unknown graves in this cemetery.

The Scott family of Alexander Scott, Ann Scott, and another Alexander Scott are buried here. These are the father, mother, and brother of Elza M. Scott, who lived in Cambridge.

In another plot is a tribute to Ransom Jones, of Portlandville, N. Y., who died on August 25, 1838.

The next is a memo of Levi Morgan, who died on September 22, 1837. There is a story that Levi Morgan was traveling on horseback and stopped for the night at the old Metcalf Tavern on West Wheeling Ave. He was given a room on the third floor. In the morning, he was found dead on the pavement below. His horse and effects were taken by Judge Metcalf and used to pay for the funeral expenses and for a slab that marked his grave, which was erected by A. Fesler.

Another gravestone, under an apple tree, marked the grave of Joseph Burton, who was the husband of Aunt Becky Burton, of Cambridge, Ohio.

Beside it was a plot taken up for three of the McCartneys who died in 1846; John, the father; Sarah, the mother; and Martha, the daughter; and, in an extreme corner, was a small stone to four infant children of Daniel and Martha Shively.

In one of the papers, it was noted that three of the graves were illegible. A letter from W. C. Bryan, of Zanesville, Ohio, said that these were the graves of his father, mother, and brother. His father was Thomas Bryan, an early settler of Cambridge, and was one of the first constables of the township. James Bryan was connected with the Ohio Stage Company as an agent and died in 1841.

C. L. Madison stated that he moved to Cambridge in 1841 and could remember a grave marker in this cemetery which had the name of Marshall on it. There was a tree near the Gomber plot, and, we suppose, that the Marshalls were Andrew Marshall and his wife. He was a contractor and builder of the first jail in Guernsey County in 1810 - 1811.

Edward Roseman is also supposed to have been interred here. He was 80 years of age when he died and was the grandfather of Mrs. Julia A. Davis of Cambridge. He lived, for many years, on Steubenville Ave. and was, by occupation, a weaver and owned a farm at the west end of the city.

Another of an old family buried here was Almira, daughter of Rev. James Drummond. She died in 1841. Dr. Drummond was, at that time, a preacher in charge of the Cambridge Circuit, of the Pittsburg Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Near this plot was the Chapman square. John Chapman was one of the pioneer settlers on 400 acres of military lands. Later this farm was sold to George Watson. Mr. Chapman lived in a cabin, where he reared a large family of boys. They were all naturally fitted to be backwoodsmen, having been born in the woods. They spent much of their time in providing wild game for provisions and furs for barter for other necessary things of life. On this farm was a deer park in which were kept quite a number of deer, old and young. Of this Chapman family, there were but few who stayed in the community. Mrs. Margaret Burton, a daughter, who rests in this plot was 90 years old when she died. She was the mother of James Burton of the Guernsey Mines, and was the last of the original family.. John Chapman died September 24, 1840, and by his side, rests his wife Katy, age 82 years. There is a stone to May Ann, consort of Jacob Chapman.

This stone, to John Chapman, was the workmanship of Gideon Veitch, the father and grandfather of the Veitch family of Cambridge. He was a Scotsman who came to America with Alexander Wallace, a master mason.

Horace Adams died in 1843. He was a young man and a relative of Henry Potwin, who was engaged with his brother J. W. Potwin in the mercantile business. Henry lived in the old General Bell House, which was torn down to build the Berwick Hotel.

Next to that stone was Isabella, wife of Ebenezer Burt, who was an attorney. She was of the Rankin family and another of her family here was Susan E., daughter of Robert and Keturah Rankin.

Next are the graves of Mary and Robert Yates, age 84 years. She was listed as Mary Addison Yates, who died in 1853. There was also one to Mariah, wife of Robert Addison Yates, but the dates were gone.

In another section of the graveyard was the Hines family, many of whom died in 1846. There was a marker for Abraham Hines, the father. He lived east of Cambridge on the old Eaton place. He kept one of the early taverns.

The family of David Burt was also listed at one time. He died in 1846. Also, here was a stone to Rhoda Eaton, a daughter, who died in 1854. She was the wife of James H. Eaton, who was in the mercantile business with J. P. Smith in Cambridge and later in the drug business in Washington, Ohio.

There was also a stone to a son of R. and E. McClure who married into the Murry family.

In another row of the grounds were stones inscribed to John Eaton, James Eaton, son of John and Harriet Eaton, and to the children of Charles and Martha Armor. John Eaton was the father and the grandfather of the Cambridge Eatons. Charles Armor was a excellent penman and for many years was the Recorder of Guernsey County, Ohio. He taught penmanship at night in the county school houses. He prepared and copyrighted "Armor's Systems of Penmanship." Charles Armor was a brother-in-law of Joseph Beymer of Cambridge, and his wife was Widow Atkins, mother of Robert H. Atkins, of Cambridge. He was appointed to a clerkship in Washington, D. C., under the Pierce administration, and moved to that city where he spent the remainder of his life.

Abraham, son of R. and D. Powelson, is nearby, and the Cowan family also owned a large lot. William Cowan, Jane Cowan, his wife, and Ida Blanche Smith, daughter of Jacob and Malinda Cowan Smith, are buried together. The Cowans came from Pennsylvania and resided in Cambridge, Ohio west of the city on land which later became known as the Pollock farm.

The stones of the Talbert family were illegible, but one was thought to be for Nancy Talbert.

Another small monument was that of William Abell, coming to his death on August 11, 1849. He was squirrel hunting west of Cambridge, Ohio, and was found dead, shot through the heart, with his rifle gun lying near him. He was near a fence and the supposition was that, in climbing over the fence, the gun was accidentally discharged. He was, at the time, Treasurer of the County. The commissioners met on the 13th of August and appointed Peter B. Ankensny, of Wills township, to fill out the unexpired term. William Abell was a cabinet maker and was residing in Cumberland, Ohio, at the time of his election to the office on the Democratic ticket. He built the residence of J. T. Cain on Wheeling Ave., Cambridge, where he carried on his trade in addition to his official duties as Treasurer. He was regarded by all as an excellent man and his sudden death fell as a calamity upon the community. Mrs. Mary Davis was the only member of his family who lived in Cambridge. He was the first Treasurer of the County to die in office. The County was Democratic by a small majority, and there was quite a scramble for the succession. Thomas Arneal was elected that fall on the Democratic ticket by a 150 majority vote.

There was a marker to Mary Peodviro, wife of John Sayre. He was a Guernsey man and a plasterer by occupation.

The next slab was to Andrew W. Fesler who died in 1844. He came to Cambridge from Belmont County and was engaged in the tombstone business.

The next is a stone to Margaret, daughter of John R. Plummer and Sarah Plummer. Mr. Plummer was in the mercantile business in Cambridge for many years.

In this same row of pioneers, is a stone to William F., son of John and Eliza Ferguson. Mary, a daughter, already noted, was buried in the Bute plot.

Here, on the north side, are many graves which are unmarked and many stones have been piled along the fence.

In the south part of Founders' Cemetery is a stone to Jacob G. Metcalf and to children Caroline H., George T., and Joseph Allen Metcalf. Jacob G. Metcalf died in Wheeling, W. Va. and, at the time of his death, was engaged in the management of the Monroe House. In his early years he was a prominent man in the mercantile business, and, was the County Recorder of Guernsey County. He was one of the few ambidextrous penmen, using each hand with ease and facility and changing from one to the other.

Some of the dismantled stones were to children of Thomas and Mary Oldham; one marked K. August Geist; Daniel, son of William McIllyar; Margaret, wife of David Brown, aged 75 years; Jane Moss, the mother of Isaac and Frederick Moss, of Cambridge, Ohio; R. W. Barnard, of Danville, Virginia; Willy, son of R. M. Lykes; James O. Starrett and John Starrett, twin brothers, who died in 1851 and 1852; John M. Davis, the son of Judge Zadoc Davis.

In another part of the cemetery is a marker with the name of Rachel Kinley, the grandmother of J. F. Salmon. Also markers to Rachel B., wife of William Clymer; Rachel, daughter of William and Rachel Clymer, and James Oscar Salmon.

Next is a marble slab to Margaret R., wife of Dr. Thomas Miller, who died in 1839. This marble stone attracted many visitors to the graveyard because few citizens of Cambridge had seen a marble slab at that time.

The last family in this row is the McMurry family. Many graves, marked or unmarked, are filled by these, several of whom died in 1846, the "sickly fall" which was so well remembered by many of that era. The McMurry family lived east of Cambridge and their old brick house was one of the noted taverns on the National Road.

Another settler interred here was Benjamin Briggs, of West Liberty, W. Va. He figured prominently in the settlement of the Panhandle, West Virginia and eastern Ohio being in many conflicts with the Indians. He was employed as a surveyor in the first surveys of the lands in Ohio. He also was one of the original owners of the land upon which Cambridge is built.

John A. Beatty was a son of Capt. C. P. Beatty and was the editor of the Guernsey Times newspaper in 1837 and, afterwards, in connection with Lambert Thomas, father of J. Sterling Thomas, under the name of Thomas and Beatty. He was also connected with the Zanesville Republican in Zanesville, Ohio. John A. Beatty married, for his second wife, Cecelia Flood, sister of Charles Flood. He was appointed to a clerkship in the Treasury Department in Washington, D. C., under the Taylor administration. He died in Washington, and was buried in the Congressional cemetery. John A. Beatty was the nephew of Zaccheus A. Beatty who was the great grandfather of Billie Burke, the wife of Florence Ziegfield. Many descendants of this family continued to live in the area.

Thomas Sarchet is buried in the next square. He was born on the island of Guernsey in 1770 and settled in Cambridge in 1806. Annie, his wife; James Bichard Sr.; Judith Ferbrache, sister of Thomas Sarchet; and Rachel M., daughter of Moses and Martha Sarchet are all buried in this square.

Next is the stone of John Baxter. He was of the Baxter family of Washington, Guernsey County, Ohio, and is the uncle of A. M. Baxter.

In this square were buried Isaac and Sarah Oldham, who were later moved to another cemetery. John Baxter was their son-in-law.

A stone marks the grave of a child of Robert T. and Sarah Allison.

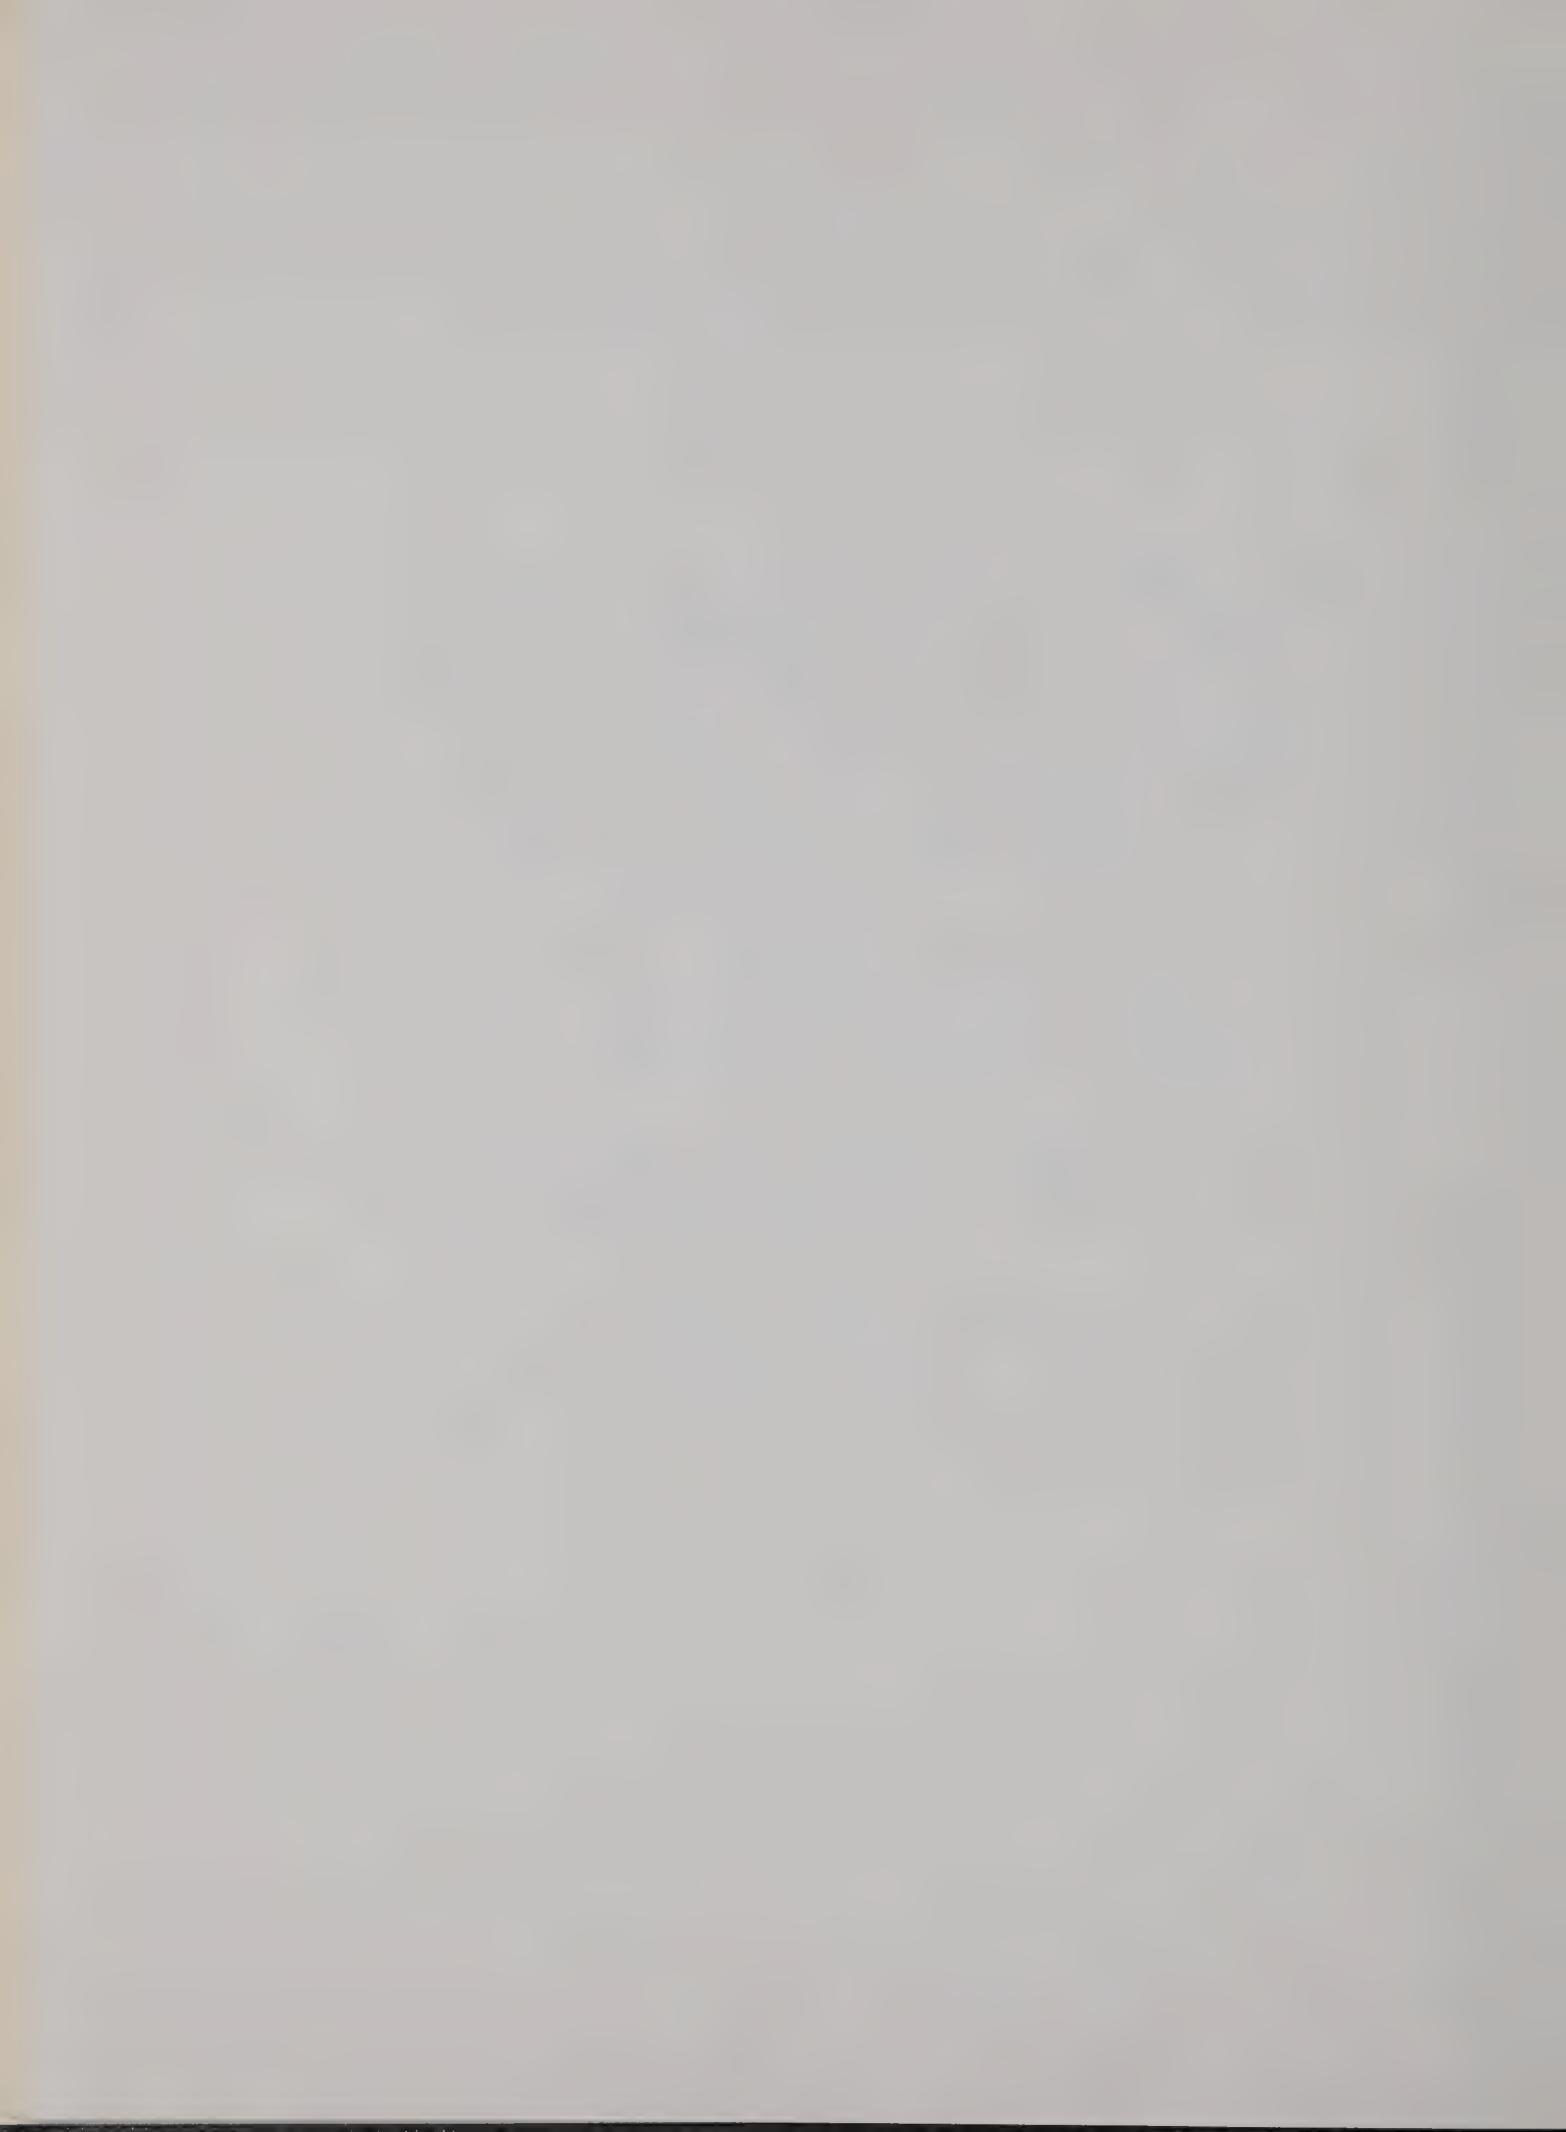

Nearby is another stone to a child of B. and Mary Williamson.

A square is given to Nicholas Martel, who died in 1847. He was from the Guernsey Isle and was a direct descendant of the great Charles Martel, the duke of the Franks, who gained the decisive victory of Poitiere in 732 A.D., that checked the power of the Moslems and saved western Europe from further invasions. He was named "Martel, the Hammer." Nicholas Martel was a salt boiler and made the first salt from the wells of Guernsey County, Ohio.

There is a monument to Enoch and Abigale Hutchison and their deceased children. They were the parents of A. J. Hutchison and the twin brothers Josiah and Cyrus of Cambridge.

Close by is the stone of John Deeren and one erected to Rachel Deeren, wife of Wyatt J. Tingle. John Deeren was a tavern keeper in the early days on what was later called the Ellis Kelly place.

James Mottee's grave begins another row which ends with a stone to his wife, Mary Mottee. She was the daughter of Joseph Cockrel, an early settler and a miller at the old Gomber mills, located on the north bank of Wills Creek.

The preceding account was apparently written by someone who was well known in the community and who had an extensive knowledge of its inhabitants. Although the writer of it is unknown and the date of his writing is also not determinable, he apparently had a desire to impart his knowledge of these families to his future readers so that the information might be preserved.

It is included in this publication because it refers to so many families and the burial of their loved ones that otherwise would have become unknown. So many markers have been destroyed or otherwise lost. Founders' Cemetery, like all others, affords a study for the geologist as well as the genealogist, in the study and examination of gravestones. Some have remained in almost perfect condition after many years, some have decayed rather rapidly, and others are still crumbling away and becoming illegible.

Perhaps, had better care been taken over the years, more could have been preserved. Like most old cemeteries, this cemetery has been well cared for in some years and sadly neglected in other years. Some bodies have been removed by their families and reburied in other cemeteries.

However, in the early 1960s, the following gravestones were still standing. This following list, together with additional information contained in the records of the Guernsey County Court House at Cambridge, Ohio, and other publications will, we trust, assist the genealogical searchers of this area.
